Four years after his first solo exhibition at the gallery, Mark Jenkins is back with "Outsiders", which will be held from December 3, 2022 to January 14 at Danysz Paris – Marais.
Through "Outsiders," Jenkins gives form to his sculptures, whose attitude and movement never cease to surprise with their hyper-realistic humanization, thus breaking the monotony of everyday life. He presents us with his unusual sculptures that have brought him international renown: life-size figures camouflaged under their hoods , whom he dresses in ordinary clothes. Sitting, standing, lying down, suspended, these figures are at the center of striking scenes unfolding within the Parisian space of

"I'm primarily creating a social experiment. I… I'm exploring something that goes beyond st… experiment." – Mark Jenkins

His aim is to introduce into the space (whether it be the street, a gallery or a museum) a foreign body, in the literal as well as figurative sense, in order to better scrutinize in return the reaction of the social body to this disruptive element.
